NATIONAL AQUACULTURE DEVELOPMENT (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)

Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from National Aquaculture Development Senator Daschle. The hearing will come to order. Let me welcome our guests and our witnesses, and let me especially commend my colleague and very dear friend, Senator Akaka, for his tenacity in encouraging the committee to hold this hearing. No one has been more resolute in his determination to bring about this hearing than is the very distinguished Senator from Hawaii. And I am delighted to be a part of it with him this afternoon. As I know everyone understands, this hearing is to be conducted as a part of the consideration of S. 1288, the National Aquaculture Development, Commercialization and Promotion Act of 1993. It reauthorizes the National Aquaculture Act of 1980, something that Senator Akaka has been involved with for a long period of time, first as a member of the House and certainly now as a member of the Senate. The aquaculture industry in this country has grown rapidly over the last decade. It is a diverse industry, encompassing production of freshwater and marine species of fish, shellfish and aquatic plants. Aquaculture enterprises exist in over 30 States and range in size from small family farms to large corporations employing hundreds of workers. In 1990, products of commercial aquaculture in the United States were valued at over $760 million, representing a four-fold increase since 1980. Even with this increased production, the United States currently imports over 59 percent of its fish and shellfish, resulting in a $3.3 billion annual trade deficit for seafood.
